

Annual Comfort Map
Elizabeth Heldridge (Team 5)

This analysis shows a more specific design strategy for increasing the amount of comfortable hours a person can experience by shading from the hottest hours in the year. (represented by the red and orange dots).

Hours with most radiation during the year.

Note: Because this method of shading simply blocks the hours with the most radiation, it doesn't account for the coldest hours when radiation would be beneficial.